

Terri McNally teaches 5th grade special education students at Hiawatha Middle School. She has been teaching students with special needs in the Hiawatha district since 1996 beginning at the Hiawatha Elementary School for 3 years. Prior to her position as a special education teacher, she was a substitute teacher for several area districts, a special education para-education in the speech resource room and a 4th grade teacher at Sts. Peter and Paul in Seneca.

Terri graduated from Peru State College with a BS in elementary education in May 1988 and earned her masters degree at Emporia State University in Learning Disabilities in December 2000. Her future goal is to pursue a degree in school psychology.

Terri resides on a farm north of Morrill with her husband, Chuck. She has 3 children, Keegan who is in the Navy and currently stationed in Guam and will be doing a tour in Iraq next year, Kelsey a freshman at Highland Community College, and Sean a senior at Sabetha High School. During her free time, Terri enjoys riding her motorcycle, reading, and working outside on various projects on their farm.
