

My name is Jerlyn Sullivan. I live in rural Troy, KS with my husband, Brad. We have 3 children: Christopher, Lacy, and Taylor. Christopher and Taylor both have special needs; this being the main reason I have decided to teach special education. My goal is to make a difference in a person's life as one teacher has made in the life of my oldest son. We are also expecting our first grandchild in late December or January.

My husband and I are avid motorcyclists. We are big participators in the Bikers for Babies and March of Dimes. We also enjoy antique shopping.

I am currently the 6th grade IRC instructor at Hiawatha Middle School. This is my 3rd year of teaching. I have taught 2 years as the K-2nd grade IRC instructor at Horton Elementary. I have also been a special education para educator for 11 years. I completed my degree through Emporia State University graduating with a Bachelor of Science in Elementary Education in May 2006 and a Masters in Adaptive Special Education in May 2008. I am currently working on my Reading Specialist Licensure.
